City to ask bids for house removal

The Daly City City Council Monday night called for bids on the last house on the block to be moved for development of the new Lincoln Park.

On Councilman James Tucker's motion, the council approved calling for bids for moving or demolishing the old two-story house at 967 Brunswick St., with provisions that the successful bidder live up to the contract.

Mayor Victor J. Kyriakis emphasized, "We're not going to get burned again." The other houses on the block, sold to the city, one at a time over the past several years, as the residents moved or retired, have been sold and moved or torn down by contractors at city expense.

But one house, which the city paid to have demolished, was moved to another location instead and the city got nothing for it. With a contract for demolition of this last house, will go the warning that no moving permit will be issued, Kyriakis said.

Ron Mitchell, assistant to the city manager, reported that the old house, now boarded up, is sound structurally. Kyriakis said he would rather see it moved than torn down, because "we'd like to be able to salvage as much of the building stock in Daly City as we can."

The council also approved a request from Mary's Help Hospital for a variance from the Uniform Building Code to allow use of plastic piping in the hospital's current building expansion project.

A letter from Donn L. Thomas, Mary's Help director of facilities development, said the city hadn't told the hospital of restrictions on the use of plastic pipe until the project was well along and it would cost some $85,000 to replace now. This would mean "significant delay to the project schedule," Thomas noted.

City Attorney Albert Polonsky told the council the building department had approved that part of the plan, because of the welding on the pipes, which led the inspectors to believe they were metallic, as required in the code. Polonsky recommended that the plastic pipes be allowed for the specific use in the hospital project only and that the exception be made clear to other builders who may want to use it too.

Thomas' letter pointed out that the hospital planners had called for the plastic pipe only because of new requirements including clean piping for de-ionized water, acid waste and brine systems. Other materials simply wouldn't maintain the required purity of the de-ionized water, he said. Pyrex piping could be substituted for the acid waste system, but that construction is 65 percent complete and would be "prohibitively expensive" to replace now, Thomas added.

Councilman William Schumacher remarked, "I'd like to see the parking plan for that addition," as a possible trade-off for more parking in return for the variance.

"Once that's completed, there will be more employees but no more parking," he said.

But Polonsky replied that the variance was to the contractor, not the hospital.

A low bid, the lowest of two, won for C.V.E., Inc. of Santa Clara, a contract to improve existing traffic signal systems at four intersections in the city, at a cost of $85,400. The city has $75,582 in carry-over funds. Another $19,000 would have to Jim P. Alegre says he is a four-time parent interested in the education of his children.

And for that reason, he says he'd like to "contribute what little I can to make sure my kids and all the children in the Jefferson Elementary School District have the opportunity for the education they deserve."

Alegre, a 41-year-old import specialist working for the U.S. Customs, is one of four candidates seeking two open seats on the JESD Board of Trustees, Daly City.

It is his second effort at securing a seat, having been a candidate 2½ years ago.

Joan Dennison has a varied background in education — and much of it occurred while she was a student and an "Army brat."

And now the 47-year-old teacher's aide wants to put that variety to work by becoming a member of the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District, Daly City.

Mrs. Dennison, making her second bid for the JESD board (she last ran 2½ years ago, finishing fourth when three were elected), has lived in Daly City at 354 Chester St. nearly 18 years.

And during that time, she says, she "educated myself by volunteering and working in the district. I know what the needs are and I'm interested in those needs."

A native of Wyoming, Mrs. Dennison attended public schools in a number of locales, including five years in Germany. She was graduated from high school, however, in Mt. Vernon, Wash., and attended the University of Texas, where she graduated with honors in accounting. She slso has attended Stanford University in Palo Alto.

Claiming that "I've been told I'm supposed to be a conservative," and admitting a second later, "I guess I have a basic conservative attitude," Mrs. Dennison, who has two children, 18 and 15, said today's educational problems do not reflect a problem with the children themselves.

"The kids are the same. They're eager to be educated. However, finances are the problem," she says.

"We have a limited amount of money, and that money needs to be put into programs that directly affect the children. And our district today does a good job with the limited amount of money it has."

Mrs. Dennison also believes that

Carole A. Didia

Carole A. Didia decided to seek a seat on the Board of Trustees of the Jefferson Elementary School District through a process of elimination.

"I looked around for a candidate to support and decided I'd do it myself," says the 39-year-old homemaker/bookkeeper.

"I looked around for someone who is as qualified as I am...someone who has attended board meetings for the past five years who is as interested as I am and who has the same viewpoints.

"When I couldn't find one at the time, I figured, 'What am I waiting for?' and decided to do it myself."

A native of Detroit, Mrs. Didia attended parochial schools there. She relocated to San Francisco in 1964 and moved to Daly City six years later. She and her husband, Salvatore, have two children, a 12-year-old son and a daughter, 9.

Indicating that she is a conservative, especially when it comes to spending tax dollars, Mrs. Didia maintains that the biggest problem facing education today is maintaining the quality while funds dwindle.

"At this time the money is there and the teaching staff is there," she says. "The problem is emphasizing the correct evaluation and needs assessment by strengthening the weaknesses and emphasizing the positive."

A past president of the Franklin Roosevelt PTA and current president of the Fernando Rivera PTSA, Mrs. Didia is first vice president of the Jefferson Council of PTAs and the director of parent education for the 17th District Council of PTAs, which includes all of San Mateo County.

She also has been a classroom volunteer for six years and has served on many JESD board-appointed committees.

One of Mrs. Didia's top priorities would be to improve the quality of education — which she doesn't see as being bad now.

"We're never satisfied with what we have," she says.

"We also have to exercise responsible control of the tax dollar and how it is spent in our school district," she adds. "We also must emphasize the cooperation necessary between the administration, the teaching staff and the parents."

Mrs. Didia also emphasizes the importance of involving the community — and not necessarily the parents — in decisions of the Jefferson board.

In an effort to cope with declining enrollment, the candidate says

When the Jefferson Elementary School District contemplated the closing of one of its schools early last year, John G. Morrice fond himself in the middle of the decision.

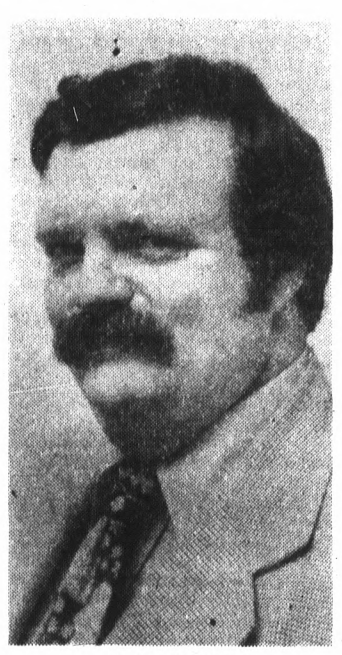

Morrice, 34, was on the Concerned Parents Committee of Abraham Lincoln School. It fought to keep the school open, but eventually succumbed to the will of the Board of Trustees.

He says he decided to seek a seat on the board when "I realized I was dissatisfied with the board in the way it makes decisions and the attitude toward parent involvement in the decision-making process."

Morrice is a salesman for Montgomery Ward in San Mateo.

The candidate says he is liberal on some issues, "but you must be fiscally conservative because of the limitations of Proposition 13."

"Teacher morale is a big problem, perhaps our biggest other than money," he says.

No breakthrough predictions in Jefferson strike

By JOHN CURRY and TERRY DAVENPORT

Nearly a week of informal discussions and jockeying with the state mediator has ended with the resumption of formal contract negotiations between the Jefferson Union High School District and the striking American Federation of Teachers Local 1481.

The strike, now in its seventh week and 28th working day, is the longest in recent California history and neither side is predicting a breakthrough soon, although AFT President Marcy Ballard has been optimistic recently that progress can be made.

Contract talks resumed Sept. 26 after a long delay and have been going on at the Dunfey Hotel most of the time since, although not on an around-the-clock basis as requested by the union and demanded by parent and student groups.

AFT spokesman Tom Fitzpatrick said today that contrary to some reports, the district has not made an actual salary offer to the striking teachers, paraprofessionals, aides, and office and clerical workers.

The district still is sticking to its request to state mediator Michael West that he refer the salary matter to an appointed fact-finding panel, which would study the district's finances and recommend on salaries.

The AFT for its part has softened some of its major contract demands, such as binding arbitration on salaries and for grievances, the latter now going "on and off the table," Fitzpatrick said.

The district negotiators also have ignored some compromise language in the latest union proposal for office staffing at the six schools. The original AFT demand was for seven full-time positions at each, which the AFT now says is negotiable.

"If there's any obstacle to a settlement, it's in the mind of the district," Fitzpatrick said.

The district did reject the lastest union pay proposal, for 8, 9 and 10 percent increases in each year of a three-year contract, saying it didn't have the money to pay that much. The contract also would include a no-strike clause, which the AFT claimed was a major concession but which drew little response from the district representatives.

School attendance figures again have varied, with district spokesman Dave Shepard saying 60 percent of the student enrollment and 48 percent of the AFT teachers were in school Monday, with the rest of the classes being led by substitute teachers.

Fitzpatrick said the union count showed 45 percent of the students and only 30 percent of the AFT membership, including the non-teaching staff, reporting for work.

He added that a few more teachers "came out" Monday to join the strike and that there have been no more major defections back to work, such as last Thursday, when nine teachers "went in" at Serramonte High School, giving their reason as economic necessity.

A press conference called Monday morning by the striking teachers' union turned into a rally as the union president charged that the district is more concerned with destroying the union than reaching agreement.

Mrs. Ballard confirmed that the union and the district had engaged in confidential talks over the weekend and accused the district of breaking the secrecy of the discussions first.

During the talks, she said the district had "dangled" a 3 percent wage increase before the union but she stressed that this offer has not yet officially been brought to the table — and has some strings attached.

She explained that, along with that 3 percent raise, the district is asking for reopener clauses in the second and third years of the contract and a no-strike clause.

Mrs. Ballard gave no hope that such an offer would end the strike, noting that the district "is trying to run a vacuum cleaner through our contract" by asking the union to agree to changes in the current agreement.

The union leader pointed out that a 3 percent increase would mean about $75 additionally per year for paraprofessionals, $250 more annually for secretaries and clerks and $500 more per year for teachers — "nearly enough to pay their car insurance."

"The school district has made money during the strike and 3 percent was available at the beginning of the strike," Mrs. Ballard said, contending that the dispute will not be settled until the district appoints negotiators who can bargain in good faith.

Asked where the union will go from here, Mrs. Ballard told a group of about 40 union members at the City will try to halt Olympia site sale by Jeff El.

Time suddenly is of the essence for Daly City in its quest for a 16,000-square-foot chunk of the Olympia School site for a park, with the top priority this week trying to stop the Jefferson Elementary School District from selling the campus before the city can negotiate for it.

The City Council Monday night gave City Attorney Albert Polonsky the go-ahead to examine the possibilities of legal action to prevent the school district from going through with a sale.

The city began condemnation proceedings last month and "there's some question of whether they've properly offered it for sale," Polonsky said, noting that the district had offered the property to the city in May and turned down a city offer for the east end of the site in July.

The council set a public hearing on the condemnation for Nov. 19.

The city is interested only in the playground area of the school, at Eastgate and Northgate avenues, which was closed after the 1977-78 school year because of declining enrollment.

Sale bids are to be opened Oct. 24 at the district office, with the district Board of Trustees then presumably to go ahead with disposal of the property, Superintendent Pete Hansen said Tuesday.

"We didn't actually make the city an offer of the property in May, but suggested it (the city) buy the entire site, take what it wants, then sell the rest," Hansen said. The city "offer" in July was only an expression of interest, he recalled.

Hansen said also that a group of attorneys claiming to represent the interests of the late builder Henry Doelger may be interested in re-acquiring the school site on behalf of Doelger's widow, Mrs. Thelma Doelger.

Under state law, unused public school sites must be offered first to other public agencies. If they don't want them, they then must be offered to the previous owner. If that party refuses, the property goes for sale to the general public.

Mrs. Doelger would need only to match the highest offer from another private party, Hansen said, and she could buy it. The district purchased the school site from the Doelger firm nearly 30 years ago and opened the school amid the then-new Doelger developments in 1953.

Hansen said he didn't know what the district paid for the property then, but a recent appraisal put its value at something over $800,000.

Most of that money by law would go to the state, but the district could petition for some of it for capital outlay funding, Hansen said.

The district board has been trying to decide what to do with the property since the school was closed, going for leasing by a split 3-2 vote most of the time.

But the school buildings need re-roofing, at a projected cost of $45,000, to make them usable, which the board also has decided it doesn't want to finance.

But Trustee James Ward Cranna recently changed his vote from lease to sell, which the district sees as settling the matter.

But the threat of legal action by the city means "this isn't going to be a clean deal," Hansen commented.

Neighbor protests have D.C. impact

Protests of neighbors had their impact on Daly City's City Council Monday night, as the council denied an application for a rezone, use permit and resubdivision to allow three duplex housing units on a lot at 33 Vale St.

The council also earned itself a round of applause from the 10 neighbors of the potential project.

"It's not very often we get applause up here," Mayor Victor J. Kyriakis beamed.

Mrs. Guido Merlini, 74 Vale St., reminded the council that this was the last vacant lot on Vale and said the rezone, from R-1 single family to R-1A duplexes, would be "spot rezoning."

"This is what creates slums and blight," she said, noting that the residential area around the lot is all R-1 and this development wasn't in keeping with the character of the neighborhood.

"If we must form an association we will, but we don't want to," she said of the residents' determination.

No one appeared at the public hearing for the applicant, Ron Musetti, whom Mrs. Merlini described as an absentee landlord, as was a previous owner who several years ago had attempted to have the 86.8-by-101.71-foot parcel rezoned for apartments.

Fred Bloom, 89 Vale, told the council, "Like the Pittsburgh Pirates, Vale Street is a family."

He said, "Parking is bad now and would be a lot worse."

Mrs. E.M. Merlo, 57 Vale, said she had resided in her home there 53 years and a "blank wall" on the development "would take all my sun and all my light" from her bungalow home, because the proposed buildings would be too tall.

Councilman Albert Teglia moved for the denial and Councilman Anthony Giammona seconded. The voted was unanimous.

The Planning Commission had okayed the project Sept. 24 and sent it to the council with a recommendation for approval.

Bay Area in 1956 and Daly City in 1970. He and his wife, Erlinda, have two sons, 17 and 10, and a pair of daughters, 16 and 9.

Educated in the Phillipines, he received a degree in business from Armstrong College in Berkeley. He also has attended the University of San Francisco and Lincoln University, San Francisco.

Alegre, who refuses to label his opinions, since "I represent the community because of my many involvements," says this country isn't seeing "the real product that education should put out. We're just not doing as good a job as we should."

Alegre complains of young children in juvenile halls and jails.

"If education had done its share we wouldn't have that many people in that kind of situation now," he maintains.

He also believes that it is the job of trustees, parents and teachers "to set priorities...to give children all the opportunities. We should concentrate on the kids and not squabbling adults."

Today's children, he says, are no different than past generations. "They're eager to learn and crave anything new. Often today kids are really being pawns to adults, and that's not fair."

Teachers today, however, are different, Alegre says, but only in one major area:

"They tend to be more labor conscious, and you can't blame them. It doesn't mean they are better or worse. They're just different."

Alegre also believes the financial plight of the JESD and other districts throughout the state due to declining enrollment and funding cutbacks can't be blamed on school boards.

"Let's be realistic," he says. "When we don't have the students, we don't have the funds. But I still believe we can provide a good education for our children."

One of Alegre's goals, should he be elected, is to create a better atmosphere and line of communication between the board, the administration, teachers and the community.

"The morale in this district — and others — is low. I've tried to analyze the low morale, and I believe it can be remedied by being visible, involving the community in decisions before they are made and in establishing priorities."

Adds Alegre:

"I'm running on my record. I hope voters will realize I'll be there for the children...and provide a fresh outlook."

Dennison

the public schools must offer a wide variety of programs: "Children must be reached by all kinds of programs. Their interests must be reached because the children's needs are the most important."

She says an example of this is her 18-year-old, a music major at the University of California, Los Angeles.

"The public schools can offer programs that can attract more students. My son would never have gotten interested in music without the public schools, she says."

Mrs. Dennison also believes teachers today are the same as they were when she was a child: "Most that I have seen are dedicated teachers."

The school board candidate is the chairman of the Northern San Mateo Mental Health Advisory Committee, the Great Books coordinator for the Bay Area, active in the PTA at Olympia School and a seven-year docent at the San Francisco Zoo.

As for her goals as a JESD trustee, Mrs. Dennison says first she would insure that district funds are channeled into programs at the schools.

"I'd also like to see an increase in morale in the district," she says. "I'd like everyone to feel they're doing a good job."

She adds she wants to open up the lines of communication between the board, the district administration, parents and the community.

"The parents and the community do not believe they are being listened to," she says.

"That should change."

Didia

teachers should be trained by the federal government for other occupations befitting their education, rather than being forced into an unrelated field.

"Teachers have to come to realize that they are in a profession that has no control over the numbers (of students). Teachers are valuable individuals with a high level of education."

Mrs. Didia says she doesn't believe children are any different than they were years ago, except that they are maturing faster and living in a fast-paced and more complicated world.

Teachers, too, are about the same, she says. But she adds she fears there is an effort to lower standards so it appears students are doing better.

As a final note, she adds, "When you become as involved as I do you need all the support in the world from your family.

"They must realize that you're out there working for them (my husband and my children) and not for yourself...that's it's all the kids that are important."

Morrice

the attitude often comes from the top.

"We must have more communication between the administration and the credentialed and non-credentialed staff. So often the board seems remote from what is happening in the schools."

In line with this, one of Morrice's goals if elected is to "raise teacher morale to make them more effective in the classroom." He says he'd also like to see more involvement of parent advisory groups in the decision-making process and have the board be generally more responsive to the community needs.

Besides Morrice's involvement in the Lincoln closing issue, he now is a member of the School Improvement Plan committee for Christopher Columbus School, an elder at the Broadmoor Presbyterian Church and superintendent of the Sunday School there.

Morrice doesn't see declining enrollment as a major problem in the elementary school district. "We have more students that the board anticipated this year at several grade levels, but we're still down 3,500 from 10 years ago. We'll never return to 10,000 children, though."

He also believes that the influx of minority families with small children into Daly City will help offset other declines in enrollment.

Morrice says students are different now than there were years ago because they're more pressured to become adults earlier. "Urban and suburban children are not allowed a real childhood. More than 50 percent of their mothers work and they come home to an empty house. I guess I was spoiled because I grew up right next door to the woods."

Morrice wants teachers more involved.

"The half of the day that children are away from home they're at school. Who knows more about what the child needs — other than the parent — than the teacher?"

Broadmoor man held in shooting during card game

A 25-year-old San Bruno man was shot and killed in a South San Francisco bar Tuesday after he and a friend reportedly argued over a pool game.

The victim, Jose A. Mora of 116 San Felipe Ave., No. 6, died at Kaiser Hospital of gunshot wounds to the head and back.

Witnesses reported that Mora and a friend entered the Copacabana Bar shortly before the 10:45 p.m. shooting to play pool, police said.

In another shooting incident, Broadmoor police report that a disagreement over a card game led to the shooting of one man in the head and the arrest of his companion.

The victim is Terrence Wright, 27, of San Francisco, reported in stable condition at Peninsula Hospital.

Being held on a charge of attempted murder is Lamance Burks, 29, of Broadmoor. Police said the shooting occurred Sunday afternoon at 9 Village Lane.

DAY AT THE RACES

The Westlake Catholic Women will have their annual Day at the Races today at the Bay Meadows Race Track in San Mateo. Chairwoman Mrs. Sal Machi, right, and Co-Chairwoman Mrs. Thomas Di Maggio have invited everyone to join in the special day. Tickets are $11 each and include admission to the field, a program and lunch in the Turf Club. Bus transportation will be available. More information and reservations may be obtained by calling Mrs. Harry Linder, 756-1069.

Daly City Girl Scout Association activity

Now is the time for troop leaders and girls of the Daly City Girl Scout Association to sign up for October/November special events.

An extended program will include paper sculpture, stitchery, puppets, weavings, macrame, outdoor crafts and collage.

There is a change on hours for the registration of girls and adults in the Daly City Association. Registration will be Oct. 16 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. be allocated to cover the construction contract and $9,182 for construction engineering.

The four projects will be at Washington Street and Junipero Serra Boulevard, Bayshore Boulevard and Geneva Avenue, and John Daly Boulevard at the Dorchester-Eastgate Drive and Sheffield-Poncetta Drive intersections.

One major item of business that didn't come up Monday night was a use permit and subdivision application from American Development Corp. for a 63-unit condominium project at Southgate Avenue near Cerro Drive.

The Planning Commission has recommended approval, with a long list of conditions, but Polonsky said there are still some questions to be answered.

With the concurrence of a developer representative, the council continued the public hearing to its Nov. 19 meeting.

Strike

press conference, held in Pacifica. "We're going back to the Dunfey Hotel (the negotiations site) ready to meet and ready to reach agreement. Isn't that what you want us to do?"

The union members roared, "Yes!" and broke into applause.

Representing the district, David Shepard confirmed that meetings with the union had been held Thursday, Friday and Sunday but said, "We made no offer of 3 percent. The question of how much money we have did come up. We made an offer of 5 percent at the beginning. We're now somewhere between 0 and 3 percent. We had to take the 5 percent offer off the table because we're losing money on the strike."

The Local 1481 "press conference" continued with Tom Fitzpatrick listing a number of violent incidents that he said have taken place since the strike began and "prove that business is not as usual" on Jefferson Union High School District campuses. He claimed:

- A teacher at Westmoor High School in Daly City assaulted two girl students during a water balloon incident.
- A "strikebreaker" (a substitute teacher) assaulted a sophomore girl at Oceana High School in Pacifica.
- "Strikebreakers watched passively" while students broke a goal post at Oceana.
- A student was severely injured when she went through a plate glass window while playing frisbee at Oceana "and the school's response was to outlaw frisbees."
- A security guard at Serramonte High School in Daly City smoked marijuana with six students in front of the school.
- A guard at Terra Nova High School in Pafifica drank beer while on duty.
- "Strikebreakers" continually dismiss classes early or do not hold them at all and one math teacher has students doing push-ups in class.

Shepard dismissed Fitzpatrick's reports as "rumors," except for the Oceana incident in which a student was injured. "I don't see how that was strike-related. From what I understand one of our substitutes who is a doctor was credited with saving the girl's life."

He said the union should have filed formal complaints if it was unhappy with the district's handling of any incidents.

"I'll be the first to admit that it is not business as usual, but you'll notice the union didn't discuss any violence on the picket lines or in confrontations with substitutes," he said.

Shepard declared that the ball is in the union's court. "We have asked for formal talks but haven't heard an answer," he noted.

The district reported that 60 percent of its students and 48 percent of its regular teachers attended school Monday.

Growth, no-growth issue in supervisorial race

By RICK SULLIVAN

The slow moving, almost sluggish campaign to capture the vacant seat on the county Board of Supervisors is slowly unfolding with all the trappings of a classic growth vs. no growth contest between the two front runners — Arlen Gregorio and Mario Biagi.

Although neither candidate so far has been very outspoken in his stand on development and the preservation of open space, campaign donation statements filed at the county clerk's office reveal their underlying political persuasions.

Special interest groups are beginning to fill the campaign treasure chests of their candidates in much the same partisan fashion as the 1976 supervisorial runoff election between attorney Fred Lyon and former Daly City Councilman MacRobert Stewart.

Indeed this fall's special election is strangely reminiscent of that three-year-old contest that saw a liberal attorney beat a conservative councilman in a fight over development, specifically on San Bruno Mountain.

This time around an attorney and a councilman are again squaring off and development, once more, is stealing the center stage in the race to replace Bill Royer on the governing board.

A showdown is imminent between the liberal Gregorio and the conservative Biagi over whether county-controlled lands should be released for construction of affordable housing to meet the ever expanding market of low and moderate income home seekers.

Financial campaign statements reveal that housing developers, realtors and construction workers stand solidly behind Biagi, a Redwood City councilman and owner of two county businesses.

Records show that by the end of September Biagi had raised $29,378, mostly from these sources.

Contributors, so far, include Redwood Plumbing ($100); Bay Area Contractors ($250); Pacific Ready Mih ($500); Poletti Properties ($200); developers David Bohannon ($200); builder Frank Aiello ($250); real estate investor Thomas Ford ($200); contractor Donald Hack ($100); developer Albert Giannotti ($100); and real estate appraiser G. Warren Fox ($100).

The candidate's financial support was buttressed politically two weeks ago when the San Mateo County Central Labor Council formally endorsed Biagi citing particularly his call for construction of low and moderately priced homes in unincorporated areas of the county.

The Labor Council, according to its executive director Peter Cervantes-Gautschi, considered backing Gregorio but dismissed him almost solely over his stand on development.

Cervantes-Gautschi said that Gregorio told the council which represents some 30 labor unions countywide, that he opposed development in unincorporated territory and instead urged that housing be encouraged in the already densely populated cities.

The council's decision to back Biagi did not particularly surprise Gregorio. For years the 47-year-old former two-term state senator has been identified with a variety of environmental causes, most notably his push for legislation to use state funds to buy areas of San Bruno Mountain for parks and open space purposes.

Conservationists who backed Gregorio in the senate are lining up behind him now.

Since his announcement last June that he would enter the race for supervisor, a core of longtime Gregorio supporters including Lyon — now chairman of the Board of Supervisors — have been priming the old campaign machine and donations have been rolling in.

Records show that financial contributors include Barrie Ramsey Girard, past president of the Committee for Green Foothills ($500); Mel Lane, publisher of Sunset magazine and a former member of the state Coastal Commission ($100); Mary Henderson a member of the Coastal Commisson ($400)

Other contributions to Gregorio's effort are Speaker of the State Assembly Leo McCarthy ($500); former county manager M.D. Tarshes ($150); Ann Benner, a Democratic Party activist ($500); plus many local attorneys, including Bob Kane, Bob Bishop and Joseph, Michael and Patrick Galligan.

Before his election to the senate, Gregorio was a partner in the Galligan law firm.

Gregorio, this week also won the endorsement of the county Democratic Central Committee.

The county Republican Central Committee had been prepared to support Biagi, but he turned down a GOP endorsement, saying he does not want a non-partisan contest to be fought along partisan lines.

Four other candidates are in the race for the Nov. 6 election to the board. Nancy Jewell Cross, Clifford Boxley, John C. Cooper and Phyllis Burton are actively campaigning, but none of them are attracting large donations.

Boxley has raised $2,329, Cooper $533, Ms. Cross $688 and Mrs. Burton $1,056.

They're off and running today at Bay Meadows and right at the rail cheering them on are members of the Westlake Catholic Women from Our Lady of Mercy Parish.

Mrs. Sal Machi, Mrs. Harry Linder and Mrs. Thomas Di Maggio have worked to put this event together as a pre-festival money-raising funday.

In addition to WCW members, the day is being enjoyed by a number of husbands, relatives and neighbors of members.

JUST ONE more month and it will be Christmas Boutique time once again!

Members of the group will assemble at Nick's Rockaway in Pacifica for no-host cocktails to be followed by dinner a 7 p.m. Dec. 18.

Work on a large party of this type takes the time and talent of many persons and anyone interested in helping make the arrangements, do decorations or handle some of the tasks which need to be done in advance of party day are requested to let Clinton Steele know of their willingness.

Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, the editor of the club's newsletter, reminds everyone that there is no gift exchange. It is a day for fun and good food only.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

An appetizing presentation of herty beef stew is a potato-topped deep dish pie. Tender slow-simmered cubes of beef chuck or round are joined by onions, carrots and tomatoes in this tasty entree.

When the beef is tender, the stew is transferred to a casserole and topped with fluffy cheese-accented mashed potatoes. If desired, the stew may be prepared ahead of time and refrigerated. Shortly before serving time, top it with the potatoes and bake until bubbly hot and lightly browned.

STEWED BEEF PIE

1½ pounds beef chuck or round, cut in 1½ inch cubes
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons oil
10 boiling onions, peeled
1 can (8¼ oz.) whole tomatoes
1 can water
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
2 large carrots, peeled and cut into 1-inch pieces
3 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese

Dredge the pound and half beef cubes in the mixture of fourth cup flour, one teaspoon salt and eighth teaspoon pepper.

In deep heavy skillet or Dutch oven, brown beef cubes on all sides in 3 tablespoons oil.

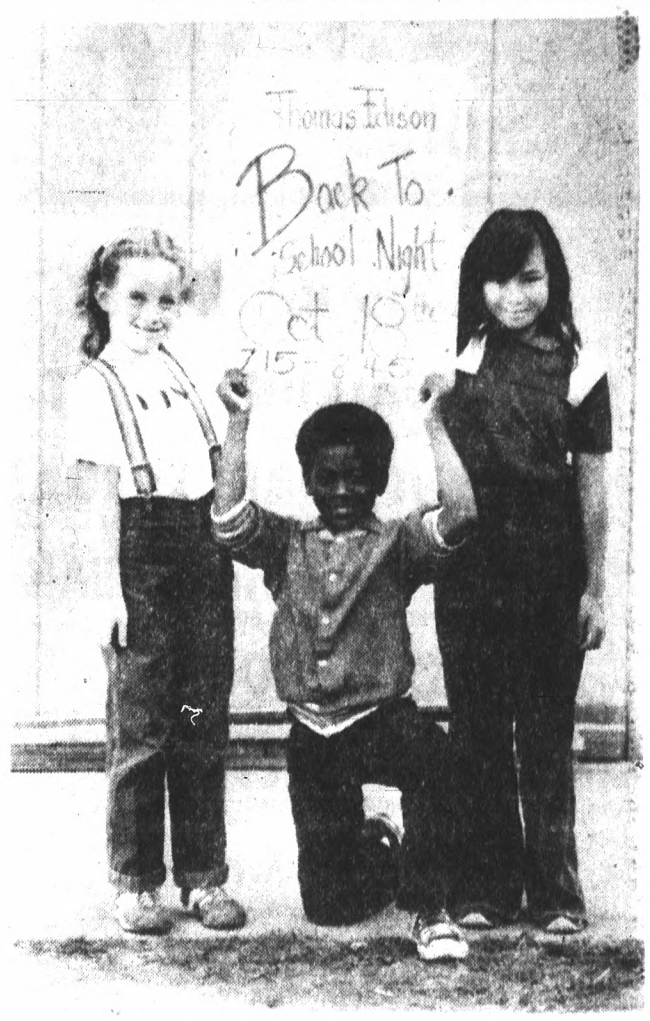

Remove from skillet. Add the 10 onions; cook until lightly browned. return beef to skillet. Add the tomatoes, one cup water, fourth cup parsley, two teaspoons Worchestershire sauce and carrots. Cover and simmer for two hours or until beef is tender.

Turn into 2½-quart casserole.

Combine three cups mashed potatoes and one cup shredded Cheddar cheese and spoon over top of stew.

Bake in 375-degree oven for 25 minutes, or until potatoes are lightly browned. (If stew has been prepared ahead and refrigerated, increase the baking time to 40 minutes.)

Makes 6 servings

D.C. rockhound show

Rockhounding is almost as ancient as man himself, since early implements and weapons were fashioned from rock, and later objects for temples, homes and personal adornments.

Examples of these early arts will be exhibited at the Fifteenth Annual Golden Gate Gem and Mineral Show, Oct. 20-21 at the Westlake Park Community Center, 149 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

Although no particular theme has been selected by the host clubs, Daly City Rockhounds, it will include a wide variety of themes from past shows, with emphasis on rockhounding in general.

This year's show will truly be a roundup of treasures and gems from land and sea, with dealers from the Western states and materials represented will literally be from agate to zoisite.

Displays will include award winning cut stones, jewelry, minerals, hand wrought silver and gold, in fact, just about everything conceivable. There will also be demonstrations of various aspects of the hobby.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Harvest Ball plans made

On Nov. 17 the 24th Annual Golden Harvest Ball will take place, according to Chairmen Herta Glas and Brian Boas.

The Ball will be held at the San Francisco Hilton in two ballrooms. Jimmy Diamond and his orchestra will be heard in the Continental Ballroom; Thurmond Wells and partner of Wauzi Records, will provide disco sounds and a light show in the Imperial Ballroom.

Books of tickets are $15 or single tickets — $1. Donations may be made through any San Francisco or Peninsula B'nai B'rith Women's Chapter or B'nai B'rith Lodge.

Jeff grinds out a big win over Regents

Sports
And Recreation

It is not terribly imaginative football. Take advantage of the other team's mistakes. Do not make any errors of your own. Control the ball by running it down the opponent's throat. Let the defense shut off the opposition. Good fundamental football.

While this defense-oriented, ball-control game may not be highly entertaining, it is the type of football which can win games — and ultimately championships.

Jefferson High's football team employed this tried and true formula Friday, gaining sole possession of first place in the North Peninsula League with a 21-16 victory over defending champions host Serramonte. Jeff is 2-0.

The Indians simply took advantage of Serramonte errors with a powerful rushing attack.

"We just came out and took it to them. There was really nothing special we did," said Jeff quarterback Richard Rodgers. "We came out in the second half and we knew we had to come back. We knew we were a better football team. We just made mistakes in the first half."

The first mistake was on the opening kickoff, as Regent star Darryl Williams sprinted 88 yards with the game-opening boot. Jeff's only other mistake of the game led to another Serramonte score; a poor snap from center on a punt gave the Regents excellent field position. But the resilient Indian defense, led by hyperactive Jaime Jackson, pushed the hosts back and Regents settled for Chico Arcaya's 35-yard field goal.

Jeff, despite the 9-0 deficit at halftime, did not feel discouraged.

"We felt if we did the things we had to do, we would be all right," said Coach Lou Sanchez.

And that was to play fundamental football. The Indians did not attempt a single pass in the second half and caused two Serramonte turnovers.

Early in the third quarter, cornerback Sam Smith intercepted an enderthrown Regent aerial and returned it to Serramonte's 14-yard line. Three plays later Rodgers bulled over from the three for the score.

On the next Serramonte series, the Jeff defense struck again. Blitzing linebacker Victor Childs blindsided Regent quarterback Robert Williams as he was attempting to throw, causing a fumble. The ever-present Jackson, who enjoyed a superb defensive game, recovered the loose ball on Serramonte's 17. Six plays later Rodgers sprinted around left end for a six-yard touchdown run to give Jeff a 14-9 lead.

After a Serramonte punt, Jeff again displayed its grind-it-out rushing game. With third and 12 on the Regent 49, Rodgers, running option, turned upfield when daylight appeared and broke several tackles to gain a critical 16 yards and a first down. Two plays later Smith bolted off tackle for a 31-yard scoring play.

Serramonte mounted a rally as Williams hit wide receiver Joe Nobles with a 20-yard TD aerial. But after a Jeff punt, Doug Cheatum intercepted a Williams pass, and the Indians ran out the last four and one-half minutes of the contest.

Sanchez was naturally pleased with Jeff's defense, which limited the Regents to only 105 yards net, 38 rushing.

"The whole defense played well," he said. "Most of the time we rushed only three guys. We put up to seven guys in the pass coverage to shut off their wide men. We did what we wanted to do to contain them."

Sanchez also praised Rodgers, who rushed for a game-high 117 yards.

"What can you say about Richard? He just does it all. Great rushing, good defense, and heads-up ball."

Good fundamental football.

S — D. Williams 88 kickoff return (kick failed). S — Arcaya 35 FG. J — Rodgers 3 run (Proano kick). J — Rodgers 6 run (Proano kick). J — Smith 31 run (Proano kick). S — Nobles 20 pass from W. Williams (Arcaya kick)

NEWSPAPERS FIRST

Rams rally, edge HMB

Westmoor High's football team, specializing in close decisions, squeaked by host Half Moon Bay 7-6 Friday in the game marred by both teams' numerous mistakes.

"I hate these games," said Westmoor Coach Pete Matisi, recalling with tongue in cheek last week's defeat by Serramonte by the same score. "I like the 30-12 games when you don't have to think too much."

Half Moon Bay, with the game on the line and time against it, drove from their own 33-yard line to the Ram's 20-yard line before opting for a third-down field goal attempt with 28 seconds left in the game.

Fernando Silva's soccer-style kick from 37 years out fell slightly short, hitting the left upright just below the crossbar.

Cougar Coach Tim Oppezzo, noting that his team had no time outs remaining, said the decision to kick on the third down was made so as not to risk losing the scoring opportunity.

"If we didn't get out of bound or score," he said, "I don't know if we could have gotten the kick off."

The Rams were able to mount a scoring drive late in the third quarter behind the passing of quarterback Tom Orloff and running of halfback Daron Jones, who scored from six yards out. Danny Piiwa's extra point try was good and Westmoor had a precarious one-point lead.

Midway into the fourth period, HMB was in excellent position to score, but on third-and-three at the Ram 15-yard line, a pitch-out to Tim Bettencourt went awry, and Westmoor's Mike Casperson recovered on the Ram's 25-yard line.

Oppezzo, pleased with his team's performance despite the loss, said his team's inability to make the big play cost them the game.

"We didn't make the close plays, and in a big game it hurts," he said.

The Cougars' lone score came in the second quarter, when Bettencourt, who gained 107 yards on 23 carries, took it in from the three-yard line. The extra point try sailed wide to the left.

Take SamTrans to Half Moon Bay this weekend . . .

. . . and your pumpkin can ride free!

The Half Moon Bay Art and Pumpkin Festival has become a Bay Area tradition during the last eight years. But so have Coastside traffic jams that can fluster even the jolliest jack o'lantern.

That's why smart pumpkin pickers are riding SamTrans this weekend. Sixteen Pumpkin Specials will leave the SamTrans westbound bus stop at Hillsdale Shopping Center, routed directly to a Great Pumpkin Patch in the center of all the festivities. Buses leave for Half Moon Bay at :30 past the hour between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday. There are hourly return trips, too—until 5:00 p.m. on both days. One-way fare is just 40 cents for adults, 25 cents for youngsters under 18.

This year, don't be spooked by traffic goblins and parking gremlins. Relax on SamTrans . . . where your pumpkin rides free.

Deaths

HELEN MAY MORI

Helen May Mori, a resident of Garden Village in Colma for 40 years, died Wednesday. She was 69.

A native of California, she was a leader of the San Mateo County Girl Scouts for 30 years, a member of St. Martin's Episcopal Church for 22 years and a private secretary for 15 years.

Surviving are two daughters, Ann Mori of San Mateo and Margaret Mori of Sacramento.

Visitation was held at the family home in Colma Friday evening.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 2 p.m. at St. Martin's Episcopal Church of Hogan & Sullivan Funeral Home in San Francisco.

Interment was Monday at Olivet Memorial Park in Colma.

Contributions to the St. Martin's Episcopal Church Memorial Fund or San Mateo County Girls Scouts are preferred.

SSF staff to go ahead with revitalization

The South San Francisco City Council Wednesday authorized the city staff to continue preparing Grand Avenue revitalization plans.

Bob Yee, director of public services, estimated beautifying the downtown street would cost $1.64 million.

Construction costs should be about $1.3 million, he said, but the actual cost will not be known until the project is put out to bid.

Money to build new streets and sidewalks and to landscape Grand Avenue, Yee said, would come from federal, county and local sources.

An assessment district of property owners between Airport Boulevard and Spruce Avenue was formed earlier this year to pay for part of the project. He said the assessment district should generate about $508,000.

The city staff is to meet with downtown merchants and property owners next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the West Orange Avenue Library.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

La Bella Pasta now world famous

The LA BELLA PASTA, located in Edge Water Place shopping center on the boardwalk overlooking the lagoon in Foster City, is now world-famous (or at least as far away as England). A woman from England dining with a party of local people mentioned to co-owner/manager DEAN BRITTNER that she had read about the restaurant when in Great Britain. Seems her daughter, who lives in Foster City, had sent her mother a gift wrapped in the "Bright Lights" pages of the SAN MATEO TIMES. She was so pleased with what she read about La Bella Pasta that it was her first restaurant stop during her visit here. ... Since Chef ARNAUD brought his tamed "oldtime" full family-style Basque dinners to LES JON'S in Burlingame, several groups have been holding banquets, receptions and parties at this intimate restaurant and bistro. A large group of Basque people from the Peninsula and San Francisco staged a festive banquet here, and a gathering of auto execs and personnel from one of the dealerships on Burlingame's "Auto Row" held a big party in the banquet room, which accommodates from 15 to 50 ... One of the reasons HAEKUN CHOI has made THE CYPRESS HOUSE in Half Moon Bay such a success since he took over a few months ago is that he has staffed it with pleasant people, such as Hostess "Kathy" and his office assistant "Lynn."

Super salad table Brass Elephant hit

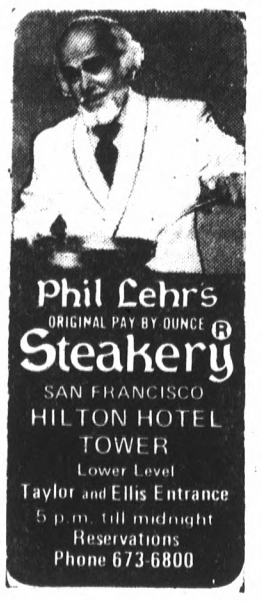

Under the leadership of general manager JIM RAINE and the energetic efforts of his capable crew, THE BRASS ELEPHANT room at the GROSVENOR AIRPORT INN in South San Francisco is attracting more and more appreciative patrons for lunch, dinner, and Sunday Champagne Brunch, with the famed Super Salad Table offering more than 25 choices ... Connoisseurs of fettucine are very particular about their favorite pasta. Those who really know acclaim the Fettucine Alfredo at the sophisticated DAL BAFFO European restaurant in Menlo Park as a true epicurean triumph of owner/chef VINCENZO LO GRASSO ... Lots of excitement at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," the other night when Ella Fitzgerald stopped by for a late supper following her performance in the Fairmont's Venetian Room ... Something that goes great with pastas and other Italian dishes is a lusty mixed green salad, which is why the large mixed green salad bowl (service for four) for only $4.75 is so popular at ROMANO'S Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Choice of several dressings ... Beef en Brochette broiled on a skewer and served on a bed of rice pilaf and Breaded Veal Cutlet with mushroom sauce are two popular dishes served at the HOUSE OF TROY in San Carlos.

Alfredo's red-hot combination offer

When somebody offers a red-hot special like a Combination Platter of prime rib generously cut to your taste and lobster broiled to perfection, served with pasta, French bread and butter (with a complimentary glass of wine if you bring in their ad from today's "Bright Lights" section), it's often limited to certain days or hours. But at ALFREDO'S restaurant in downtown San Mateo they believe in serving a special seven days a week ... PHIL LEHR, innovative owner of PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce STEAKERY, on the lower level of the S.F. Hilton Tower, has just created a luscious new dessert that even dieters can't resist. It's rich ice cream topped with cubes of honeydew melon, then flamed with new, imported Midori Melon Liqueur ... Three great restaurants, NICK'S for steaks and seafood, CAPTAIN CHARLES for gourmet seafood, and THE MOONRAKER for continental cuisine, in Rockaway Beach are only a few minutes drive, via Highway 380, from where it connects with 280 above South San Francisco ... GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco offers option of service — in the restaurant or take-out, and even home delivery service. Pick up a menu the next time you stop by to try Chef JOHN CHIANG'S Chinese and American dishes.

Lehr's Greenhouse smash dinner menu

FRANK VERGA just introduced a new dinner menu at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco that won instant approval from enthusiastic diners. You'll still find all of your old favorites on the menu — prime ribs, New York steaks, poached salmon, etc. — plus new gourmet dishes such as papaya chicken, roast duckling, and broiled double lamb chops ... Appetizers to titillate your tastebuds at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant include Raw Clams on the Halfshell, Raw Eastern Oysters on Halfshell, and other tempting treats flown in fresh daily and served with delicious sauces ... "An Evening of Elegance at B Street" is the way creative owner/impresario MICHAEL GLENN VERDONE describes the new program of special events at his popular new B STREET RESTAURANT in downtown San Mateo. Dining, dancing and disco are drawing patrons from near and far for the nighttime fun. Lunches and the "happy hour" (4 to 6 p.m.) do it for the daytimers ... TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT in Moss Beach is even more lively these days, with the current visit of TILLIE'S brother, REINHOLD ("Ron") from their native Germany and the arrival of her brother OTTO. Both will be around the German and continental restaurant to assist Tillie and to "sprecken sie Deutsch" with any patrons who would like to brush up on their German ... KOHARU restaurant in downtown San Mateo confines its luncheon and dinner menu to the traditional dishes of Japan. Kimonoed Japanese waitresses also serve sake, the natural accompaniment for the food, served warm in delicate little wine bottles called choshi, and Japanese condiments to enhance an enjoyable meal.

Fregosi, of S.S.F., had Bay Area in his corner

Le Pacini

Even though the Giants weren't in this year's play-offs, as expected (or perhaps only hoped), there was at least some local rooting interest.

Jim Fregosi, of course, had to have the Bay Area in his corner. Not only was he managing the West's only playoff team, but he is, of course, from Serra High, and his parents own a grocery store in South San Francisco.

In addition to Fregosi, the Angels had former Oakland stars Don Baylor, Joe Rudi and Camp Campaneris.

Pittsburgh had on its roster five players who once played for the local pros: Bill Madlock, Tim Foli, Joe Coleman and Dave Roberts, and from Oakland, Manny Sangillen. And don't forget that Pittsburgh manager Chuck Tanner's brother, Joe, once played third base for the San Francisco Seals.

On the Baltimore bench was another Oakland great, coach Frank Robinson.

On the Cincinnati squad there was the Oakland kid who made good, Joe Morgan, and former Giant Heity Cruz. And Manager John McNamara, of course, was both a manager and coach for the A's, and a coach for the Giants.

And, umpiring in the National League playoffs was Daly City's Eddie Montague.

Unfortunately for Fregosi's Angels, they never had a chance; not only because Baltimore was so good, but also because Fregosi was playing with a short deck because of an incredible run of injuries that, had he not been in the weak division of the American League, would have kept the Angels out of the playoffs. Actually, had they been in the AL East, they would have finished in fifth place. The fourth place Yankees, maligned as having "collapsed" with injuries and age and disappointments and internal strife, would have beaten the Angels by two games had they been in the AL East.

Indictive of the domination of the Orioles in the playoffs, aside from all of the obvious statistics, is that manager Earl Weaver had to use only five pitchers, and never used his ace reliever, Tippy Martinez, while Fregosi had to practically run the gamut, utilizing nine pitchers.

Hope this doesn't sound like sour grapes, but I disagree with the experts who say that Bill Madlock made the difference with the Pirates.

I predicted that he would hit .340 for Pittsburgh (he hit .328). As I said, what good hitter wouldn't hit better in that park than he could hit in Candlestick.

But Madlock's .328 isn't what turned it for Pittsburgh. They were already on their way back when they traded for Madlock, although, admittedly, he may have been frosting on the cake. The man who turned it for them was Foli, whom they acquired from the Mets at an earlier date than they got Madlock, and at a time when they were in the doldrums, playing under .500 ball and going nowhere.

What the Pirates needed was not more hitting (which is what Madlock gave them), but a tighter defense, which is what Foli provided and which is a commodity, despite publicity to the contrary (wait until the writers and sportscasters and fans get a gander of Madlock in the field once he's off his high), which Madlock can never give them.

I'm not quite sure how you root for an umpire — how do you determine his won-loss record? — but I was rooting for Montague. And it worked, because he didn't make a bad call all series. It's unfortunate that to think in terms of umpire competence you think in the negative. Not what he did right, but what he didn't do wrong. But the old cliche about umpires is true. They're expected to be perfect every day, and they hear about their work only when they aren't perfect.

And while we're still with Fregosi and McNamara, what two better choices for Coach of the Year in their respective leagues? Both brought their teams to the brink of the World Series despite tremendous psychological and physical handicaps. Fregosi was expected to win something because "the cowboy has laid out so much to buy a pennant." McNamara had to manage in the shadow of Sparky Anderson and somehow compensate for the loss of a legend — Pete Rose. And then there were the disappointments and injuries and illnesses with which both Fregosi and McNamara had to cope.

Fregosi had only two pitchers — Dave Frost and Nolan Ryan — who pitched over 200 innings. At that, Ryan missed starts with arm trouble.

Chris Knapp and Frank Tanana, on whom Fregosi had counted to be stalwart starters, didn't get in 200 innings between them because of arm problems. Don Aase and Jim Barr, who could have taken up the slack, both had bad years for no particularly good reasons.

Fregosi's best relief pitcher was a rookie, Mark Clear, who folded after the All-Star break, and his veteran reliever, Dave LaRoche, had a terrible season.

Rod Carew missed six weeks with a bad finger, and wasn't 100 percent even when he returned for the stretch drive. Joe Rudi was practically worthless because of a series of injuries.

Just when it seemed he might be helping, Campaneris went down with injuries and was of no help in the pennant drive. And Fregosi lost rookie hitting sensation Willie Mays Aikens in the last week of the season and for the playoffs.

McNamara didn't lose just Rose. Bill Bonham, potentially his best starter, pitched ony 176 innings because of shoulder miseries and was out for the playoffs. Johnny Bench played hurt all year, not able to produce a "Bench-Like" season.

Dan Driessen and Joe Morgan had their worst years. George Foster was out for two long stretches. Ken Griffey's knee problems allowed him to play only 95 games, most of those hobbling.

And while we're on the subject of honors for local guys, if St. Louis first baseman Keith Hernandez doesn't get the MVP award (which he won't because his team didn't win anything), he sure as hell should be a shoe-in for National League Comback of the Year.

Last season, Keith's worst, he hit .255 with 138 hits, 32 doubles, 4 triples, 11 homers, .64 RBI and 90 runs scored.

This year he led the majors in batting (.344) — and had to hold off a rampaging Pete Rose to do it — and in doubles (48); led the NL in runs scored (116), was second in total hits (210), just one behind teammate leader Garry Templeton, was fourth in triples (11) and fifth in RBI (105). He had 313 total bases and a slugging average of .513.

In the American League, it has to be Minnesota pitcher Jerry Koosman, who went from 3-15 with a 3.75 ERA for New York last year, to a 20-13, 3.38 this year, the second best season he's had in a pro career dating to 1965.

One more mention about a local boy who made good this year in the biggies. That would be, of course, Jerry Coleman, the new San Diego manager who cut his baseball teeth at Lowell in San Francisco.

And yet another local note, which has nothing to do with baseball. Nick Nicolas, a former Skyline College soccer star, returns to his alma mater as the new head soccer coach, replacing Norm Friedeberg.

The Regent

By ROBIN MOELLER
Commissioner of Publicity
Serramonte High School

As of last Wednesday little progress had been reported in the strie.

There was a board meeting Oct. 9 at the Oceana High School cafetorium.

Night school started Oct. 10.

More teachers crossed the picket lines.

There were some problems at the woodshop when a substitute allegedly worked on his own projects during class periods, without woodworking experience. Many of the machines were damaged and some wood was missing.

Harrich took a leave of absence. He had crossed the picket line an taught classes for about a week before making a decision to leave.

He said that last year, due to the strike, he didn't have the same disposition as the previous year, and that this year it was even worse.He believed he couldn't adequately teach the way he felt. Harrich was in the science field and taught physics, electronics and other science courses.

THERE WAS an Executive Board meeting Oct. 9. Those members attending were: Genny Hom, president; Leslie McNiel, vice president; Grace Ligh, secretary; Maria Bautista, treasurer; Robin Moeller, commissioner of outside publicity; Carol Hall, commissoner of inside publicity; Liz McNeil, commissioner of athletics; Rochelle Alip, commissioner of elections; Michelle Craig, commissioner of rallies; Daphne Jackson, senior class president; Sandy Nalls, junior class president; Gina Hom, sophomore class president.

ELECTIONS for the freshmen class officers were scheduled for last week.

Shaunna Hall and Linda Wenzleburger were both running for sergeat of arms of the Executive Bord.

The Executive Board voted on the issue and Shaunna Hall was voted in for the 1979-1980 school year.

THE SENIOR class will have the concession at the football game Oct. 18 against South City.

THE CLASS of 1982 is selling pompons and buttons from Oct. 9 through 19.

IT'S TIME for everyone to gathet up some class spirit and get involved! Class points are given for posters and "class yells' during school rallies.

THIS YEAR, for the first time, the Executive Board will be selecting "class of the month." This also will increase the class winner's number of points. At the end of the year a spirit trophy will be given to the class that has accumulated the most points.

SOMETHING else new this year at Serramonte is the class sports competitions during fifth periods.

The first game will be Oct. 17, featuring seniors against juniors. There will be teams of volleyball and basketball that will consist of half boys and half girls.

There will be a game every week.

To sign up for participation in a game, contact your class president, or Genny Him, school president.

Samuel Chandler

1979 may go down in history as the year of the skirt. Not mini or maxi but the straight skirt giving "a molded look," and the skirt with the slit.

It is those slits in the skirts that have sent reporters, "google-eyed" and inspired, to their typewriters.

"It's sexiness and slinkiness," one reporter writes. "It's hey, look a me," writes another.

Meanwhile, a "Newsweek" reporter notes that "women claim that the lean and leggy styles are a welcome break from voluminous layers of seasons past."

Citing Rod Ashell, who said, "A pair of female slacks represents the triumph of moral courage over vanity," a newspaper reported that in 1979 vanity is winning.

"I love them," some gal said to the "Newsweek" reporter. "They allow you to stride breezily and when you sit and cross your legs, it's most becoming." Meanwhile, a 50ish New York secretary explained that she wears skirts "because they're sexy — and at my age I never thought that I would be using that word again."

According to the reporters, many interviews with men show that the male population welcomes the return of the skirt. Like Lord Curzon, men ask, "why do women — with the lovely shape which God has given them — want to wear trousers?"

But everyone is not happy.

In Chicago, the windy city, "Newsweek" reports, women carry brief cases on the slit side "to be cautious." One forthright woman observed, "They — slit skirts — are uncomfortable and unbusinesslike. Who wants to walk around in an office exposing her thighs?"

To a woman who worried about the length of today's skirts, a writer in "Vogue" said, "So don't feel pressured ... experiment with your skirts and see how you like them." Even John Molly, who has been called a wardrobe engineer, warns against skirts that detract from a women's authority. "When the slit is above the knee, it says bedroom not board room."

Molloy's volume, "The Women's Dress For Success Book" (Follett $9.95), is being widely read. Molloy charges that many American women dress for failure because they let others — salesclerks, fashion authorities, friends — exert too much influence on them while they are choosing their clothing. His theories have been summed up as "be a good judge" and "make clothing work for you."

As a wardrobe engineer, Molloy believes that dress — whether skirts or slacks, long dress or mini — must be chosen to fit a given occasion. "It is possible, he writes, "through the skillful manipulaton of dress in any particular situation, to evoke a favorable response to your personality and your needs."

Meanwhile, 1979 is called the year that the skirt returned. Numerous articles in such magazines as "Vogue" and "Glamour" may be consulted to help choose skirts and dresses that "work for you," as John Molloy suggests they may.

Crisis: No boundaries

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

Crisis conditions know neither age nor socio-economic boundaries.

Suicidal tendencies exist in every race and culture, in all regions of the world. Although accepted by some as the only route open following personal failure, the varied motives for suicide — the killing of oneself — continue to puzzle.

The answer to why one person decides to do away with himself/herself and another, in similar circumstances, does not, eludes even the most systematic social scientists. But away from the possible causes. The result is the same — self-destruction of an individual who was unable to cope with living.

Hoping to make a difference in the lives of some potential suicide victims, the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center of San Mateo County began its services to the local community via a telephone hotline in September 1966.

Today, with spacious quarters in Burlingame complete with parlor-like, walk-in facilities as well as phone centers for four crisis-liners plus link-up potential for every phone in the office, SPCC not only staffs three 24-hour toll free hotlines serving all parts of the county but also helps those concerned with suicide syndrome to recognize signs of contemplated self-destruction in others.

Two years ago, in response to the alarming rise in teenage suicide (the rate among adolescents has tripled in the last 20 years) and with the help of a Hewlett Foundation Grant, Charlotte Ross, executive director for the Center, and Dr. A. Russell Lee, director of family therapy training at Pacific Medical Center in San Francisco, developed a suicide signs recognition program including two pamphlets, one for use by school personnel or parents, the other by peers, which help in "reading the signs" in adolescent behavior which often lead to suicide.

The informative brochures list a number of ways to recognize "danger signs" along with suggestions on how to respond to a young person seriously considering suicide.

After the materials were developed, Ms. Ross and others began presentations in local San Mateo Union High School District schools. The training program went countywide successfully through the San Mateo Community College District.

Ms. Ross recalls that some 200 school and juvenile protection professionals participated in a Canada College presentation.

Incidentally, Ms. Ross appeared before the California State PTA Board of Managers and received that group's active endorsement of the SPCC's prevention program. An article in the September California State PTA Bulletin details the project.

Sample pamphlets are included in the Parent Education packets being distributed currently to local PTA unit presidents by 17th District PTA'S Health and Education Commissions. Anyone may obtain copies by contacting the Center directly, 1811 Trousdale Drive, Burlingame, (business phone) 877-5604.

Although the "Suicide in Youth" pamphlets and the in-school training program offered by SPCC to professionals, parents and students are important, the primary function of the Center is still the staffing of its suicide and crisis hotline.

Volunteers who work "on line" one four-hour shift a week, are highly trained for their responsibility. According to Carroll Gauger, clinical services supervisor for SPCC, volunteers are chosen carefully, trained thoroughly and supervised constantly so that they remain not only comfortable with their assignment but also understanding of the support they have in handling what are often life threatening crises for the callers.

According to Ms. Ross, the volunteer "profile" has changed over the years SPCC has been in operation. Some of its first "on-line" people were middle aged housewives, most of them available for day shifts, many with an innate sense of personal security related as much to chronological age as to emotional maturity.

Now, two thirds of the volunteer staff is fully employed. Career oriented students, graduates as well as those just starting towards degree work, along with many women who work outside the home, form the bulk of volunteers.

Although there are some with eight to 10 years service with the agency, most fill out their initial commitment, then move on, if not physically to another area, service-wise to another emphasis in volunteer activity.

Potential volunteers have three interviews before they are accepted for training. They meet Ms. Gauger, then Ms. Ross, and finally one of the center's many professional consultants. In the interviews, concerns such as, "Would the work be depressing?" and "How do I know what to tell someone?" are addressed.

As Ms. Ross puts it, by the time the interviews are over, the volunteer understands hotline service is a "job with working hours and rules from which anyone may be fired for nonperformance." In addition, although unpaid in cash, it is a job with payment in many personal rewards and satisfactions. The volunteer also understands he/she will be trained thoroughly.

Volunteers at SPCC approach their service with varying goals. For some, it is a learning experience, a way to look at a career in one of the helping professions, or a way to better understand how to handle one's own life.

For some, it provides "people contact," especially at important times in their own lives. "Newness to the community," "wanting to meet like-minded people," "wanting to do something 'meaningful' now that the children are raised" are all popular answers to "Why do you want to be a SPCC volunteer?"

For others, being a SPCC hotline volunteer gives them a chance to "return the favor." These are the ones for whom a helping hand once made a great personal difference.

All applaud the five session training program. Communication skills, especially how to listen beyond the words, are explored. Ways to answer questions in a non-threatening non-judgemental manner are practiced. Counseling skills in crisis intervention are examined and trainees are taught community resource and referral procedures.

Rev. Walter Johnson, chaplain at Peninsula Hospital and a member of the SPCC Board of Directors, whose special area is working with the bereaved, is one of the many professionals who assist with training.

According to Ms. Ross, most trainees experience anxiety at the close of training about their potential effectiveness. But, says Ross, a volunteer wouldn't be much good without a little doubt about his/her ability to help. That's why volunteers are monitored and a support network exists among senior volunteers always ready to give the new person "on line", any help necessary.

If you are in need of help, or want to talk to someone who'll "just listen", the hotline is there. Locally, San Mateo City and north, call 877-5600 any hour of the day or night.

If you'd like to be on the other end of the line, as a crisis center volunteer, call 877-5604 any weekday. A new training course begins later this month.

THE DIET CORNER

By Elise Gendar, the Diet Workshop

October is the Month of Discovery!

Like Columbus, you can discover a whole new world, world of "cooking thin."

- Search your kitchen shelves for all highly processed, high calorie mixes and food extenders and toss them out.
- Change your cooking habits; use pan spray or lined pans rather than frying in butter, margarine, or shortening.
- Learn to saute in bouillon or tomato juice rather than fat.
- Serve more veal, fish and poultry, and less pork, ham and beef.
- Trim all fat from meat and poultry before cooking.
- Think "broil" instead of "fry."
- Banish "breaded" and "batter coated" from your vocabulary.
- Substitute skim milk for whole milk.
- Eliminate sugar, flour, cornstarch and other high calorie thickeners from your cooking.
- Try flavoring vegetables with herbs or spices rather than butter or cream sauce.
- Add a tablespoon of Pommeray mustard to green beans; a dash of nutmeg to spinach; oregano to salads; celery seeds to almost any vegetable for extra crunch and flavor.
- Experiment with stir frying, an easy, tasty way to cook thin. This delicious Diet Workshop recipe is likely to become a family favorite:

DEATH VALLEY

How can a seller hundreds of miles away take care of a yard in Foster City? He knows it's like a desert and will take that into consideration. The house is above average, but it's vacant and needs a little cosmetic work. Design is fine, comfortable 4 BR, 2 Ba. arrangement, but to appreciate it you must picture your belongings inside. The price has dropped and inflation over the past few months has made the price competitive. It's a buy at $165,000.
